David Prifti

Module 8 - Chapter 8 Exercise

Question 3

       Many companies use the Apache Web Server software. One of the bigger ones that provide tech support for it is Centrix Technology Group. They work with any tech group on whatever issue they might need, like IT budget spending, fixing data breaches, and working with databases. Their employees are experienced with many different operating systems and networks, so solving problems for tech companies is easier for them. Centrix does not have a price listed on their website for their services. Another company that supports Apache Web Servers is OpenLogic. OpenLogic provides many benefits through their very large open-source packages and large team of experts. They also provide help with cloud storage, and they have a community dedicated to helping out on open-source projects. Many companies and investors recommend OpenLogic because of how effective they are. They do not have their prices listed on their website as well.

Sources: https://www.openlogic.com/

              https://thecentrixgroup.com/